"Tell me what 'cher gwine ter do when the cold, cold winds begin to Sing the above to the bicycle riders who are performing at the saucer, and some of them will tell you they are going to Australia when the racing season closes here.

Some one has been telling them wonderful stories of the wealth that can be picked up there by using a little speed, and if the idea grows on them, there is likely to be a grand leave taking shortly after the 24-hour race, which begins Monday night. It is said the country offers flattering inducements to the money chasers, and they will be able to purchase meal tickets until racing begins in this country. Not only are some of the local riders thinking of going, but some of the eastern wheelmen are contemplating the trip. Those who may leave Salt Lake for the Antipodes, are John Chapman, Pedler Palmer, Barney Oldfield. From the east, Iver Lawson, Plugger Bill Martin and perhaps others. The local boys believe they can make a big hit if they take along some motor eyeles of the single persuasion. Chap-man has received a communication from T. W. Heide, secretary of the Victoria Wheelmen, making a good offer for the boys to come. He says the game will be well patronized this year, and will be better than ever in all respects. A prize of nearly $1,000 is offered for the Australian handicap, which is the big

Sir Edmund Barton Thinks Australia Ahead of America.

New York, Aug. 29 .- Sir Edmund Bar ton, prime minister and minister of external affairs of New South Wales, Australia, who was one of the most conspicuous members of the recent conference of the British colonial premiers in London, and who is on his way back to Australia, accompanied by Sir John Forrest, minister of defense, and Austin Chapman, member of the New South Wales house of representatives and government whip, has visited the leading financial institutions and me many leading business men.

Sir Edmund took a leading part in the recent enactment of the arbitration law of New South Wales and is much interested in the progress of the anthracit coal strike in this country. He considers the frequency of the great strikes in the United States a serious matical—on which requires careful study on the part of the president and of Congress.

"I think," he said, "that we in Aus tralia are very much in advance of your country in the matter of dealing with industrial conditions. By the term of our arbitration law great strikes are made practically impossible. Arbitra tion is compulsory, and when disputes arise between employers and employed both parties are required to submit the issue to a board of arbitration, which is under government control. A judge of the supreme court is the head of the board, and two assessors are named to act with him, one appointed by each

"A money deposit, sufficiently large to make both parties to the dispute unwilling to forfeit it, is required to be paid into the court before the arbitra tion begins. As an instance of this, the correspondent cites the case of the gov-ernor of Chekiang, who obtained a loan of $140,000 from an American bank at Shanghai on the plea that he was unable to meet the demands of the revenue board. The governor's application for a loan was accompanied by a par-ticular request that the bank would communicate the governor's difficulties to the American minister to China.

TO SALARIES OF TEACHERS.

Attorney General Decides a Point Much in Controversy.

FULL TEXT OF HIS OPINION.

Teachers Enfitted to Compensation During Full Term of Contract Unless Suspended.

The following from Atty. Gen. Breeden to State Supt. of Public Instruction Nelson, will be of interest, as it touches a point that has been in controversy for some time. The attorney general

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of the tonowing communication respecting which you desire my official opinion:

"A teacher was employed about Oct. 1, 1901, by the trustee in a school district (outside of a city) upon the following conditions:

"The term of employment was for the school year of 1901 and 1902, but the exact time the school was to be kept open was not determined at the time of employment, it being understood and agreed between the teacher and the trustees that the school would run for such length of time as the moneys in the hands of the trustees would per-mit. About March 1, 1992, a nepidemic of measles in the district necessitated the closing of schools temporarily. It was agreed and understood at that time that the trustees had sufficient funds on hand to continue the schools for at least five weeks longer. The school was not opened again during the year. The teacher held herself in readiness to resume her work during the whole of the time the school was closed. The contract between the teacher and the trustee was verbal.

"1-Under such facts is the teacher entitled to compensation during the time that the schools were closed? "2-Would the fact that the contract was not in writing as required by the statute in any way affect the teacher's right to recover?" I beg to advise you that in my opinon a teacher, under the facts as above stated, would be entitled to compensation under her contract and agreement up to the end of the school year or un-til the funds for the payment of teach-ers' salaries had become exhausted as was agreed to in this instance, if there had been no interruption. Contracts like this one, however, are ordinarily made on the implied condition that the performance of the agreement shall not be rendered impossible by the intervention of some accidental and uncontrolable superior agency, which means an inevitable occurance produced by an irresistible physical cause which hu-man skill could not have prevented or human judgment foreseen.

This agency seems to have intervened in this case in the form of an epidemic disease, known as the measles, which required the closing of the schools for a certain period. As this temporary closing of the schools was rendezed necessary without fault of either of the contracting parties, I think that during the son of this epidemic the teacher's salary should be deducted, and the balance during the time for which the contract was made should be paid to her.

The fact that the contract of employment was not in writing does not ren-der the contract void and cannot affect her rights to enforce the terms of her verbal contract.
